

The Barn Quilt Project in New Jersey is a project coordinated by volunteers of the New Jersey Museum of Agriculture. This project is designed to celebrate New Jersey's agricultural heritage, highlighting farms across the state with beautiful quilt blocks. These barn quilts draw attention to the unique architecture and history of New Jersey barns and other agriculture related buildings, and promote the education of New Jersey's strong Agriculture legacy.

This project speaks to issues vital to the economy of New Jersey:

- ✦ Promote agritourism
- ☒ Add value to tourism
- ✦ Preserve agricultural history
- ☒ Preserve cultural history
- ✦ Increase traffic to local businesses
- ☒ Involve many different types of people in New Jersey in this one activity

Other Barn Quilts & Trails

Barn Quilts are colorful square plywood blocks mounted on barns or other buildings. The idea was originated in Ohio by Donna Sue Groves who wanted to honor her mother, an avid quilter. A "Clothesline of Quilts" has since spread through counties in 28 states including Iowa, Kentucky, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Tennessee, and now New Jersey. As of the beginning of 2011 there were over 3,000 quilts on display including a trail in British Columbia and Ontario.

Visit the website, www.njbarnquilts.com, to keep up to date on where barn quilts in New Jersey are going up. To date they can be spotted in Burlington, Mercer, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Sussex and Warren Counties.

If you have enjoyed this tour you may also enjoy the Sussex County Barn Quilt Tour. Download or request the tour from the website.

Get Your Site Onto The Barn Quilt Trail

To get onto the Barn Quilt Trail contact the New Jersey Barn Quilt Association at info@njbarnquilts.com. Whether you have an old barn, wagon shed, farm stand or other agricultural building; we would like you to consider a barn quilt to add beauty and increase the tourism traffic to your area/business.
